Survey on health-related educational resources

Dear Sir or Madam,

FIFA Medical's mission is to improve players' health globally by setting standards in clinical care and governance, building a worldwide football medicine community, conducting and facilitating impactful research and education, and promoting equity and diversity in access to football medicine knowledge.

In light of the above, and to assess the current status of the available health-related educational programmes and resources, including e-learning modules, across all Member Associations, we kindly ask that your medical representative complete the survey linked below by indicating all such materials, written in any language, developed by your association.

This initiative aims at facilitating knowledge-sharing across Member Associations globally and fostering the development of new educational initiatives relating to health in football.

The compiled resources will be made available to Member Associations on Inside FIFA.

Furthermore, a summary of global health-related guidelines and medical research projects in football, based on the data collected through the survey referenced in circular no. 1916, is available for your consideration, as is a list of the existing FIFA Medical educational resources.

Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact Dr Andrew Massey, Director of Medical, at medical@fifa.org.

Yours faithfully,

FÉDÉRATION INTERNATIONALE
